FAQ

- Question: For each post-secondary, is there a minimum number of programs that can be selected?
Answer: Yes, each post-secondary will have a minimum number of programs you can apply to.
- Question: How can a student check the status of their application?
Answer: Check your university or college student account for the status of your application.
- Question: For early application can students receive an early conditional offer of admission based on Grade 11 marks?
Answer: Yes! If you don't receive an early offer, you will be automatically considered for a regular offer.
- Question: Do students have to resubmit marks later once Grade 12 marks become available?
Answer: Once a student has selected a post-secondary on the Student Transcript Service, it does not have to be re-selected when additional grades become available. Updated grades are automatically sent. However, if a post-secondary institution additionally requires a transcript to be uploaded or self-reported in a student account, the information must be updated!
- Question: How does a university evaluate courses and grades?
Answer: Every university evaluates student courses and marks differently! Check the university website for details.

Check university and college websites for details on admission requirements and possible supplementary applications.
